

NACC MEMBERS

- The trilateral NACC is comprised of 30 members with equal representation from each country, with each country determining its own members and the membership selection process being at each country's discretion. Accordingly, Canada, Mexico, and the United States all employed different methods for selecting their members. For more information on Canada and Mexico, please contact the appropriate Secretariat directly.
- Each country's component is supported by its own Secretariat; the Council of the Americas and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce jointly serve as the Secretariat of the U.S. component.
- The U.S. Section of the NACC is composed of an Executive Committee and an Advisory Committee.
- The 2008 Executive Committee is made up of 14 companies which are charged with representing the sectors in which their business operates, not simply the interests of their individual company. From these 14 companies, 10 will send a senior executive to represent the U.S. Section of the NACC at each trilateral meeting.
- The 2008 Advisory Committee is comprised of more than 300 companies, sectoral associations, and local chambers of commerce that have an interest and a stake in the process and who advise the Secretariat and the Executive Committee on all issues in an open and participatory process.
- Applications are solicited annually for membership on the U.S. Section Executive Committee and Advisory Committee of the NACC. Once applications have been received, the Secretariat organizations together select members at their own discretion from those that meet the selection criteria, established by each Secretariat organization.
